Evermore Drops Load on its Class A Shares

Class A shares become Investor Class and Class I shares renamed Institutional Class

SUMMIT, N.J., May XX, 2015 – Management and the Board of Trustees of Evermore Funds Trust have decided to eliminate all sales (load) charges associated with Class A shares of the Evermore Global Value Fund. Concurrent with this fee structure adjustment, Fund management has also renamed the Fund’s Class A shares (which previously were available in load and load-waived versions) to now be known as “Investor Class” shares. The Fund’s Class I shares have also been renamed and will henceforth be known as “Institutional Class” shares.

“Our goal when we launched the Fund in 2010 was to make it accessible to as wide a group of investors and across as many distribution channels as possible, including channels that mainly invested in load share classes” explained Eric LeGoff, CEO of Evermore Funds Trust. “We are pleased to be going back to our roots in the mutual fund industry and to offer only no-load classes of shares in the Evermore Global Value Fund.”

The differences between the two classes of shares offered by the Fund is that the Investor Class shares require a minimum investment of $5,000 and carry a 12b-1 fee of 25 basis points annually, and the Institutional Class shares require a minimum investment of $1 million and do not have a 12b-1 fee. The changes discussed above became effective April 30, 2015.
